THE STORY OF WOODVILLE

PIONEERING IN THE WEST

We're proud of our Pioneers, who ventured way out here,
With very little belongings, and scarcely any fear,
Determined to buy a homestead, and obtain their deed,
Some had to find employment, to earn money for their need.
Many of them came back, to prepare for their first crop,
Prairie fires were a threat, if burnt would be a flop.
They walked all day behind a plow with oxen on the hoof,
And built log houses out of poles, with a hole in the roof.

And with these faithful Oxen, hauled their grain and wood,
Leaving bright and early, when weather would be good.
Some trips before reaching home, they'd be caught in a storm,
And had to stop at neighbors, rest the oxen and get warm.
When the blizzard was over, with no fences to guide,
And no trails to follow, twas a cold bitter ride.
Wives would be frantic, for sound of sleighs on frosty snow,
Waiting for their men's return in snappy forty below.

In summer on the prairies, mosquito's were a drudge,
With a pail, and few green weeds, had to make a smudge.
They toiled through life to-gether, content and happily wed,
In log homes consisting only, of a table, stove and bed.
Then there came a Doctor, called all hours to save lives,
Many of these pioneers were hosts to him, "called midwives".
By and by more families came, later driving mules,
Soon became organized, and then they built their schools.

They held many Garden Parties, a picnic on the ground,
Spread out their tablecloths and all sat around.
Pooling their food, many goodies one could name,
And usually ended up, watching Lippentott ball game.
Church services on Sunday, never left them in the lurch,
As homes and schools were used until they built a Church.
So we owe it to Our Pioneers, they deserve the very best,
For landscaping the bald prairies, while pioneering in the west.

PREFACE

At the annual school meeting of the Woodville School District No. 599 on January 19, 1967, it was decided to do something as a Centennial project—as a tribute to the pioneers who braved their way to the bald prairies to seek homesteads and to a life of freedom and adventure.

These settlers left behind vivid memories of themselves and their works, which we are going to write into a book so they will not be forgotten.

In the late 1882 and early 1883 a few settlers came to this district—now known as Woodville. With their bare hands they built their homes, some from sods and some from logs leaving a hole in the roof to serve as a window. They hewed their bedsteads out of poplar poles and used prairie grass for mattresses. They went around fifty miles with oxen to get these poles.

These pioneers suffered many hardships such as prairie fires, droughts, blizzards, flies and mosquitoes and trouble at times with the Indians. There were not any trails or fences to follow. They lived on the few provisions they had brought with them such as salt pork, dried beans and dried fruits and bannock, along with wild life and berries. In spite of these hardships these people were very happy, sharing each others joys and sorrows. Their only medical knowledge was taken, as needed, from a family medical book, until a Doctor arrived in Elkhorn in 1884.

In the fall many of the men went miles to get work to make extra money to spend on their homesteads in the spring. To own a homestead a pioneer had to stay three years and break ten acres of land each year, and he also had to live at least three months each year on his farm.

In the following pages—if there are any omissions or errors of names or dates, we hope they will be overlooked as this information has been collected to the best of our ability.

THE STORY OF WOODVILLE

WOOD

The Woodville district was named after William Wood, who was one of the first homesteaders in this district, along with his sister "Margaret", Mrs. Robert Angus. They were born in Kincardineshire, Scotland. William was born April 19, 1843 and married Helen McGill in 1867. Margaret was born May 22, 1854 and married Robert Angus, October 1, 1881.

Both these families came to Ottawa, Canada in 1870, lived there for three years, then moved to Lyle, Ontario staying there for ten years. They then came to this district in 1883 and William Wood and family settled on the W $\frac{1}{2}$ of 12-11-29.

William Wood represented his ward in the Wallace Council for eleven years and was a faithful adherent of the Presbyterian Church. He served on the Woodville School Board for many years. The first meeting held in reference to building a school was held in his home Sept. 20, 1889. He lived on his homestead until he passed away, July 5, 1911. He was a true Scotsman, one of the few who weathered the trials and difficulties of the early years and who lived to see the successful fruit of his work.

Wm. and Mrs. Wood had four sons, James, David William, Hector and Hercules John. James and Hector died in Ontario, David and Hercules came west with their parents. David born in 1872 homesteaded about 1890 on SE 2-11-29. He married Katie Baker. They moved to 12-11-29 for a time, then to Elkhorn where he died in 1906. They had two children, William and Eleita. William married Gladys Heywood. They live at Crossfield, Alta., and have six sons, Gordon, Bruce, John Howard, Edward (deceased) and Robert. Eleita married Charles Smart (a widower with a daughter Jean). They have three children Margaret Theresa, James William (deceased) and Mildred Anne. They live at Crossfield, Alberta.

Hercules John, born March 16, 1882, married Alice Maude Allinson. Hercules served his ward as councillor in Wallace Municipality for 46 years and is still a councillor. He still lives on his father's homestead. Mrs. Wood passed away in 1961. She was an active church worker. Hercules served on the Woodville Church Board and they were generous church givers. He also served on the Woodville School Board for several years. In his farming operation he has given many families work.

They adopted a baby boy Murray Martin who attended Woodville School and later on received a private licence for flying, also an instructor and commercial licences. He married Marguerite Smith. They have five children, Fraser, Lynda, Catheryn, Kelly Rose and Tracey, making four generations having lived on the "Wood" homestead. Fraser and Lynda attended Woodville School until this family left the district to live in Virden, making it the 3rd generation of Wood families attending Woodville School.

Soon after settling in the district Robert (Sr.) was killed when struck by lightning, just prior to the birth of his daughter Mary Helen. They had their sorrows as well as their joys, as their oldest son James was killed by a team of horses running away and they were bereaved of two other sons, Archibald and Edward in their early years.

William Paull was a typical Scotsman who always had a beard. His keen interest in landscaping was outstanding. Many of the evergreens planted over fifty years ago are still standing. He was a great lover of poetry—having written a book of poems so broad in Scotch you could hardly “ken what he was spickin aboot.” An excerpt from one of his poems will be entered later in this book. He served on the school board for many years.

Mrs. Paull beside raising her family, found time to act as one of the “Midwives” of the district. She was an ardent knitter for the Red Cross—and the neighbors. One neighbor once remarked “If you lost a mitt, Mrs. Paull would knit you another while you waited.”

Their home was a stop-over for pioneers and neighbors who passed by on their way to town with their loads of grain or to buy their supplies. Lunch would be served to the men while the horses were fed and rested.

William David Paull who lived seventy years on his Dad's homestead, was a talented musician, playing in the Woodville band, also for dances, social evenings and concerts. Glenda and Shelley are now attending Woodville school, making this the third generation of Paulls going to this school. Ian's family are the fourth generation of Paulls to live on this farm.

John Paull moved on to his brother Jim's farm after Jim was killed. Like his brother Bill, he was very talented with his violin, having never missed playing for a dance at Woodville school. He has taken many first prizes at Old Time Fiddlers' contests and played in the Woodville band until it broke up. He also served as a school trustee for several years. Billie never married and lives with his father.

The three oldest children are attending Woodville School making another third generation of Paulls here.

A man was paying a visit to his native village after having been away for many years, and he paid a call at his old boyhood school. The aging school teacher failed to recognize his former pupil, saying, "You seem to know me quite well, but I have no recollection of having ever seen your face before. "That's not to be wondered at," replied the visitor smilingly, "for you were much better acquainted with my other end.

Through the doors of this little country school have passed many nationalities, and interesting personal, since the debentures were sold for the purpose of building the school in 1889.

At the first meeting they held to decide about building it, all were in favor, except one man. This was Dave Johnson. The ratepayers hired Laverne Reid, as carpenter, and he had the school ready to open in the spring of 1890.

Some of the children came as far as four and a half miles. Most of the pupils walked to school. Few families came with team of oxen. Then later came by pony and buggy and cutter. In 1920s one neighbor would start out with team and sleigh in winter, not daylight yet, with foot warmers and robes and go pick up his neighbors children and drive them all to school. The other fellow would come for them at 4 o'clock, making it work out so each man only had the one trip.

The school has been the center of many activities and community gatherings, such as old time dances, box and pie socials, showers for brides and grooms, card games and Christmas concerts.

The school today is a far cry from the school it was years back. Now with its oil heat replacing the pot bellied stoves, the indoor lavatories, replacing the cold out-door biffies.

Although like many other country schools Woodville is in danger of closing its doors. In these modern times, consolidation is gradually creeping in. But after seventy-seven years, including poverty and prosperity the school is still operating. It is the original school, and is still standing on the same spot where Mr. Reid built it.

In concluding we would like to mention the teacher of Woodville school today, Mrs. Allan Thompson. She is a grand-daughter of the late William Paull who was a trustee in the late 1890s. She has taught eleven years and the present attendance is eleven.

THE STORY OF WOODVILLE

COUNTRY DOCTOR

The country doctor was indeed, one of the greatest pioneers of all. He worked long, hard hours, sometimes with little or no pay. Many homes had no money, and would offer him a chicken, or pig, or a few bags of wheat, just what ever the farmer could spare. And still he was faithful to his oath and never refused any call. These doctors had more than skilled hands, they had stout hearts. They left the bright lights of the city, to take their place beside these men and women, who were to open up a new land and a new way of life. The first doctors suffered many hardships, and many a night with a prairie blizzard blowing, struck out with his trusty horse and cutter and before morning had brought a mother and new baby safely through.

In 1918 the year of the real bad flu, almost every home was stricken and the Doctor hardly ever saw his bed. He always managed somehow to get to his patients and comfort and advise them, some of them living many miles apart. Horses often played out, but he would get a fresh one and travel on. In spite of Doctors heroic efforts many patients died.

The first doctor came in 1884. He was an old army doctor, Dr. Rolston. Being in the army he was used to amputating arms or legs. He was known to have sawed off Nellie Simpson's arm, which was badly broken and sew it on again. He used her father's fine saw. This he did without the bright lights of the operating room, or the modern equipment without which the doctor of today would hesitate to perform.

Dr. Goodwin came in 1889 and stayed in the district for twenty-six years. He had four children, two sons and two daughters, Bessie, Joyce, Alex and Rodney. Alex became a doctor like his father and Rodney was a lawyer. Dr. Goodwin's wife was Sarah Buckingham.

Like the Doctor before him, he too had many miles to travel finding ways and means to reach his patients. This courageous man was known to have travelled by snow shoes, the last few miles. Dr. Goodwin leaves many wonderful memories, as we pass by the farm he was farming. He started farming in 1920 but found it too much. They moved then to Carberry, Man., where he practiced for a number of years before his death.

Dr. Johnson took over where Doctor Goodwin left off. He also was a man of great skill and courage. He was also an army doctor and practised in this district 28 years. He had a small private hospital of his own in the late 1930s and early 1940s in Elkhorn.

He was a very busy doctor, as now the population of this community had more than doubled. He travelled in winter by team and cutter. Earl Snyder drove him to most of his calls in winter and they also had to change ponies at some farmers place to make the long trips where the Doctor had been called to some sick patient.

One night just before supper a patient was terribly sick, a boy with pneumonia, crisis had come and boy took turn for the worse. A nurse was all alone with him and knew she had to get help. His father phoned Dr. Johnson and he was in Virden helping to operate. It was a terrible blizzard by now, and Dr. Johnson offered to come to the sick boy on horseback as soon as he came from Virden. In meantime a neighbor of the sick boy had his leg broken while milking a cow and a doctor had to come from Walpole, Sask. to set the leg, so at same time came to see the pneumonia patient and saved Dr. Johnson that trip. This was the spirit of Dr. Johnson, he would have risked his own life in blizzard to get to his patient.

We hear many people say "Had it not been for Doc Johnson, I would not have been here today". A wonderful tribute to a great man. He practised in Elkhorn up until not too long before his death. He never sent a bill.

Dr. and Mrs. Johnson had a family of two daughters and one son.

THE STORY OF WOODVILLE

Since he passed away there have been many Doctors come and go. For some reason, they have not been able to stay too long as far away pastures look greener. Following Dr. Johnson was Drs. McLean, Gorrie, Bruce, Chodniki, Gregs, Domegan, Ferrie and Gardner and now we have a Chinese Dr. Chung. We hope he will like the community and his work and stay with us longer than some of the former doctors.

The man got his ailing friend as far as the Doctor's door, but there he balked. "Im a little leery about going in there", the sick one said. "Nonsense!" scoffed the other, "This is one of the best doctors in town. What's wrong?" "Its just that I dont like the odds he offers," was the reply, "Look on his sign there—10 to 1".

COUNTRY VETERINARIANS

The veterinarian was a man ranked next to a doctor in the life of a farming community, and in the early days played a very important role as man depended on his livestock so much not only as food but as their only means of transportation.

Here are some of the names of the early veterinarians, Dr. Pomford, Dr. Cocks, Dr. Manchester, Dr. Lourie. Oswald Buck lived in the district and acted as a vet in the early years as did Mr. Barr.

Dr. Heanan came to the district around 1920 and served the district for around 46 years. Doc as everyone called him was very fond of music, playing in the Elkhorn band for many years. He was a very able gardner and his trim neat yard with its beautiful flowers proved he was an expert.

We must also mention Mrs. Heanen who's cheerful voice must have answered the phone hundreds of times trying to find out where Doc was and when he was coming out as one of their prize cows was in great need of help.

Dr. and Mrs. Heanan have three of a family, two sons Allan, living in Win-nipeg, George living in Calgary and a daughter Winnifred living in Moose Jaw, Sask.

Dr. and Mrs. Heanan have now retired and are living in Elkhorn.

FIRST POST OFFICE

The first post office was first established in 1887, known as Lippentott. It was located on the William Frank Longman place. It opened June 1st, 1887 and William was the first postmaster. He served from 1887 until Sept. 22nd, 1893. Mr. Longman drove the mail from Kola also on the way to Elkhorn while picking up the mail. He drove a team of mules and had a distance of fourteen miles to drive. The early settlers got their mail once a week, usually Saturdays.

After eight years of serving, they had a change of government and Mr. Thos. Clark then served as postmaster from Sept. 1893 until March 25th, 1895. Mr. David Simpson then became postmaster and served from 1895 until the office closed on June 9th, 1917. The last four years the post office was open Guy Longman carried the mail with horse and buggy. By this time Maryfield Post Office was open and as it was a distance of seven miles nearer than Elkhorn, Guy carried the mail to and from Maryfield.

THE STORY OF WOODVILLE

THE WOODVILLE BAND

In this lively community they found out they had some real good talent. So in 1908 Uncle Bill Goethe, as everyone knew him, of course was on the lookout for this, he gathered the men together and soon they were good enough that Uncle Bill formed a band. He was the band master. They called it Woodville Band. Before coming here he had formed a small band at Jerseyville, Ill., U. S. A.

To get funds, a box social was held in Uncle Bill's barn. This way they were able to purchase instruments and music. But most of the members bought their own instruments and uniforms. When they were well established they had a real nice photo taken.

This band was the only entirely country band for miles around and perhaps the only one in Canada at this time. They played far and near at Fairs, Garden Parties, etc. Woodville was really proud of Bandmaster Uncle Bill Goethe and his members and now would like to name his talented crew: Lorne Poston, Ben Poston, Bill Paull, John Paull, Alfred Webb, Billy Atkins, Frank Fitzimmons, Guy Longman, Roy Longman, Orval Grant, Dick Coulson, Jim McIndoe, Bill Goethe, Fred Goethe, George Fielding, Bill Kay, Jim Taylor, Alfred (Brownie) Ellis.

This band stayed together until around 1914 and as farming began to spread out, some members moved further afield. Some later joined the Elkhorn Band. Many happy memories still linger of the old times, as many of them are still in the district or not too far away. But it is amazing as we stop to look back one cannot help but feel proud of these people who amid their hardships found time to practise and play for amusement of themselves and many others.

And here we are celebrating Centennial year 1967 and some of these same members as mentioned earlier have taken out their instruments and are doing a grand job. We are only hoping their wind will hold out, and their false teeth stay in place as they now are striking up their band to play at Maryfield on June 10th, 1967.

Here is one for the boys in the band:

It was at a annual summer concert where this little country band was invited to play. They had just finished an extremely loud, but harmonious number and had relaxed enjoying the applause of the enthusiastic audience. "What's the next number?" asked the red-faced trombonist of the leader. The leader looked at his program and replied "Washington Post March." "Cracky" exclaimed the musician "I just got through playin' that!"

RIFLE ASSOCIATION

Perhaps the first relaxation and sport for the men around here was in 1906, when they organized The Lippentott Civilian Rifle Association. The captain was Thomas Adair and the secretary Mrs. Harold Blewett. The range was built on SE $\frac{1}{4}$ of 6-11-29 on the Guy Longman farm.

The Blewetts donated a silver cup for competition among the members, to be won three years in succession before becoming the property of the competitor. But no one ever won this cup.

Several of the members won 1st Class Marksman certificates. A team of five members attended the Manitoba Rifle meet in Winnipeg every year and also the Brandon Western Rifle League. They won 18th place in the Dominion Rifle League and First place in the Western League in Brandon.

Jim Paull and A. Lawson were shooting down in Ottawa. Jim was in Ottawa in 1912 for the Rifle Club to shoot off for Canadian Championship. A. C. Lawson was sent to Ottawa for the Canadian Rifle League to compete for the Bisley meet in England, but no member of the team every made Bisley.

Guy Longman was secretary from 1907 to 1915. In 1915 the government called in the issue of rifles which were Ross Rifles.

The Association had as high as 180 members at one time. Each member received an issue of 100 rounds of ammunition free of charge each year. The Association always carried a stock of ammunition which was sold to each member for two cents. The government issued the Club twenty rifles but quit after a few years. A few members purchased Ross Match Rifles of their own.

THE STORY OF WOODVILLE

Several of the members won Silver Plates, Cups and Spoons. The Silver Plates are especially a wonderful trophy. They have rifles standing out, with Maple Leaf carving, and name of Association and member's name year he won it.

Following are a list of members of the Rifle Club who resided in this district: William Paull, Jim Paull, Thos. Adair (silver spoon), Guy Longman, Frank Snyder, John Adair (silver spoon). Oliver Lund, John Paull, Wesley Poston, Jim Grant, Bert Longman, Bob Angus, Orville Grant, Robert Munroe, Fred Geothe, Bill Barr, Bill Garrot, Ben Poston, Lorne Poston, Frank Simpson, J. Johnson, Dave Taylor, Albert Lund, David Simpson, David Lund, Fred Simpson, Wesley Lund, H. Garrett, George Lund, Bill Lund, John Livingston, Ernie Taylor, Sam Garrett.

Once a year twenty of the best shooters of each province went to compete to try and win a trip to Ottawa to compete for the final. The Manitobans went to Winnipeg for this. Several of this group were chosen to go to Winnipeg. Jim Paull won several trophies and won a trip to Ottawa but was not lucky enough to get into the finals. His trophies were a cup, a bronze plaque, a silver and bronze medal and a gold watch.

Guy Longman won a cup, plate and a spoon at different times. In June (22nd and 29th) 1912 he won two medals.

Dave Lund entered a challenge shot.

Frank Simpson won a medal in 1912 and also entered a challenge shot.

Dave Taylor won a medal on June 29th, 1912.

The Club had a membership of 180 at times and many of them who helped to organize and get the Rifle Range operating were all neighbors and live now in McNaught, Maryfield and Kola district. We would especially like to list their names. They were: William Kay, George Kay, Harold Blewitt, Chas. Scott, W. Adkin, A. Elliss, W. Norsworthy, W. J. Hitchcock, George Prowd, Jack Black, H. Bottrill, E. Shillingford, A. Dallas, H. B. Brockman, A. Ellis, J. Stewart, Jim Scott, Dr. Goodwin, J. C. Martin, A. P. McNaughton, J. Stableford, Fred Downer, Harold Lund, Dr. Cochrane, H. House, Geo. Lund, W. K. Anderson, J. Robb, Williams, McCorkindale, E. Waldoek, T. Weatherald, G. Weatherald, Pickering, J. Symington, Tom Stewart, C. O. Saxton, Earl Snyder, Sinclair Snyder, L. W. Eaton, Ed Lund, A. Webb, William Prowd, W. Vance, Jack Scotney, Calvin Stewart, R. J. McCormick, W. Montgomery, Wallace Black.

A. C. Lawson also won a trip to Ottawa but was unsuccessful in getting into the finals.

Many more joined as years passed on, but we have listed the steady members who stayed with it. There are still the remains of the range where they used to shoot, still standing, and one can still find the odd shell around there. The Rifle Club dismantled in 1914—after eight years of good entertainment.

THE STORY OF WOODVILLE

A VIEW OF THE WOODVILLE CEMETERY

WOODVILLE CEMETRIES

In perhaps what was the first cemetery bordering the Woodville district there were eight graves. This cemetery was located on Sec. 36-10-30 what is now know as the Simpson farm. This little piece of land was donated by David Simpson to John Lund for a place to bury the Lund families and is known as the Lund Cemetery. Something unique about this little cemetery is that graves are facing south instead of east as is the custom today.

The first burial was Jennie Kinnear who died March 29, 1890, aged four years and nine months. It is interesting to know she was the daughter of John and Lizzie Kinnear, a daughter of a man who drove the death wagon in the Riel Rebellion. The death wagon is one in which the dead were brought in from the battlefield. Although this battle was not fought here the fact remains we here are linked ever so close to the past.

Others buried here were: Mary Ann, wife of John Lund, age 77 years, died Dec. 11, 1894; James Oliver Rowand, age 37 years, he was gored by a bull and died Jan. 27, 1895; James Harvey Rowand, age 5 years, son of James Oliver Rowand, died April 24, 1892; Jennie Lund, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Blair Lund, born July 1, 1897 and died Sept. 21, 1900; Mary Muriel Lund, daughter of Wesley and Revia Lund, age one year and 11 months, died Sept. 20, 1902; John Lund, age 85 years, died March 12th, 1904. The eighth grave was of Daniel Lund, it was removed and placed in the new cemetery in 1944.

THE STORY OF WOODVILLE

Circumstances caused a change in location and another cemetery was formed on 32-10-29 in October 1909. The Municipality of Wallace purchased this piece of land from Harry Lund for a public cemetery and for no other use for $20.00. It was named the Woodville Municipal Cemetery. Wm. Barr was directed agent of the council to dispose of said lots and keep books. Done and passed in open council in the Town of Virden, July 24, 1909.

The community is very proud of the way this cemetery has been kept up. W. D. Paull is now caretaker and he and William Goethe went north to Roblin, Man., for spruce trees to plant in the cemetery along the fence by the road. They got them on the road allowance at Roblin for the purpose of landscaping the cemetery.

The first burial was a baby, Alexandre Cecil Lund, in Oct. 1909. He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Wes. Lund.

THE STORY OF WOODVILLE

THE SECOND WOODVILLE CHURCH
DESTROYED BY FIRE

THE PRESENT WOODVILLE CHURCH

THE STORY OF WOODVILLE

WOODVILLE CHURCH

Our Little Church

There's a little church that nestles,
The one we loved the best.
And it overlooks the dearest spot
Where our many loved ones rest.
The hands that framed and built it
Now sleep beneath the sod,
But to we that know its' story
T'is a treasured house of God.
It has seen our babies christened
And our sons and daughters wed.
It has heard our anguished weeping
When we parted from our dead.
Through our lives we'll ever love it
In our hearts no spot can be
So blessed or as holy
To many such as we
And even though we worship
In another church more grand
We seem closed to our Saviour
By that little piece of land,
Where sleep our many loved ones
And we offer up a prayer
That when God calls our souls home
They will lay our bodies there
Beside that humble little church
With its ever welcome door
To rest in peace eternal
With our loved ones evermore.

The early settlers of Woodville district felt the need to worship and as there was no church they held services in the school and in the homes.

The first church services were held in John Lund's home, in fact several babies of the district were christened in this home, James Scott being one of the first. Other homes where worship services were held were Wm. Wood's; Abe Rowand's; Wes Lund's (Sr) and Lavern Reid's. These services were just church—non denominational.

The first church (Presbyterian) was built in 1892 by George Scott. Duncan Robinson did some masonry work, he built the chimney.

Most everyone around the country contributed to the building of this church; small donations, but many of them. Familiar names of church supporters in those were: John Scott; Bill Stewart; Abe Rowand; Jim Montgomery; Oliver Rowand; John Black; Wm. Kay (Sr.); George Scott; Wm. Woods; McIndoes; Alex Johnson (Sr); Wm. Paull (Sr); Arch Taylor; Barr; Lund; McAdoo; Elmore; Harvey Johnson and Greenwood and possibly many others as records have been destroyed by fire.

Alex (Sandy) Johnson gave the first plot of land for the church site, which was named Woodville after the Wood families.

All through the Wood and Paull families have taken a responsible position in the affairs of the church. Mrs. Wm. Wood was often known as the presenter as she gave and loaned many items for use in the church. The first church had no organ so she loaned hers for special occasions. It had to be transported by stone-boat drawn by horses. She was the first president of Woodville Ladies Aid and also the first organist and she lead the singing for years.

Entertainments, garden parties and suppers were held to raise money for the church.

THE STORY OF WOODVILLE

Rev. Little was the first minister. He had a pony which he rode to his services. This horse didn't have a very sweet disposition. He did not like people and the minister was no exception, he was left sitting on the ground more than once.

Next was Rev. John Kurn who homesteaded near Norsworthys'. He walked to his services. Mrs. Wm. Wood gave him his meals.

Other ministers were: Reverends Fortune, Wallace, Leddingham, Cook, Pecover, Coffin, Hood, Lund, Burns, Colpitts, Byrd, Denyess, Wyman, Douglas, Fargey, Barkwell, Johnstone and Daynard.

The first marriage in this church was Arthur Roach and Beatrice Pedrick on Jan. 13, 1904 by Rev. Burns.

The prairie fires which plagued the early settlers spared nothing and on April 17, 1906 the church was burned to the ground. But the pioneer spirit fought back and in 1907 a new church was built. The contractor was Tom Symington. Mr. Ledingham, a student minister, drew up plans for the second church. Harvey John Scott did much to implement the building of it. Others were also on the building committee.

This church served the community for forty-two years, as a Presbyterian church until 1925 when Union took place, then Presbyterian and Methodist ministers alternated for about three year periods. In later years it was known as Woodville United Church. This church was often filled to capacity in its earlier years, many names were added to its membership as years went by and new people arrived in the district, Grants, Snyders, Coulsons, Williams, Collins, McPhails, Norsworthys, Simpsons, Adairs, Lennons, Birchalls, Goethes, Overands, Roses, McNallys and Northcutts.

Around the period of time when the first church burned Sir James Aikens (Lieutenant Governor of Manitoba) bought surrounding land. Mr. H. Wood approached Mr. Aikens about land to build the church on and said the bluff should be included. Mr. Aikens replied: "There should be no "bluff" about the church" and gave Mr. Wood the deed for three acres of land where the church now stands (same site as the first church but larger).

The Ladies Aid worked faithfully all these years to raise money to help support the church, and donated generously to many needy causes. Their picnics and fowl suppers were known far and wide and some of the bachelors were known to eat a pie and a half after they had polished off all the chicken and turkey they could hold.

With all today's conveniences, church kitchens, waterworks, electric stoves, kettles, dishes, etc., it may be hard to visualize these Woodville women working in a tent, carving, washing dishes etc., with an oil stove to keep food hot and heat dishwater which had to be carted from homes in cream cans. Hundreds of dollars worth of food was passed through an open church window to feed the crowds.

Mrs. Wm. Barr was the first president of the Woodville W.M.S. (Women's Missionary Society) which was formed in 1920. Mrs. S. Taylor was secretary-treasurer for 25 years or more. Mrs. Taylor and Stewart were wonderful church people.

In 1949, fate again struck the district and once more a fire destroyed the church. But these people were determined not to be without a church so the pioneer spirit took over again.

Due to the wet years, the building was delayed awhile and church services were held in the Kola school during the summer months. World Day of Prayer services were held in Woodville school and Kola school alternatively with the school children taking part in the services. When the Mennonites built their church, they joined with us in the World Day of Prayer.

However, in 1952 a new church (the third) was built. Allan McLure built this one. Wm. Goethe contributed much time and labour in laying the floor. H. J. Wood supplied most of the paint and all gathered to pour cement for basement floor and decorate the interior of the church.

THE STORY OF WOODVILLE

We must not forget Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Taylor who lived fairly close to the church. Because of this fact they seemed to be left with so many chores—lighting the fire in cold weather, dusting the pews before church services, cleaning up before a funeral, phoning when the minister was unable to come. These were a few of the many jobs they so willingly did. Mrs. Taylor was organist and lead the singing in church for many years from the early 20's until the church was closed.

On June 8, 1952 at 2 p.m. the official opening of the new church took place and our hearts swelled with pride as our church was dedicated—and as the beautiful tenor voice of Sid Rusk sang "Bless this House" we felt our labors had not been in vain.

Mr. Fargey was the minister and Mr. Bater, guest speaker. It was a beautiful day, the birds were singing, everything seemed to be in harmony. Mr. Fargey remarked that even the birds were rejoicing.

The first wedding in this church was that of Helen Taylor to Keith Pettapiece in June 1952. Ann Birchall and Grant Overand were also married in this church in May 1955. Lillian Lund and Keith Wadham were married here too.

The first christenings were in June 1952 when Janice Twigg, June and Joan Walker (twins), Norman Lund's children and Iris May (McAdoo) Heal's children were christened.

A group of young people also took their vows as members of the church, in this church. Some of these were: Murray Taylor, Allister Lennon, Gwen Norsworthy, Mary Ellen Rowand, Mrs. Wm. Paull, Dave Shanks, Ian Paull and Dave Adair.

Then in 1959 there came a blow worse than a prairie fire. Word came from headquarters that our church was to close, and all we had worked so hard for seemed to be lost. With the closing of the church community life came to an end. Many of the our old-timers just could not adjust to a different church in town, their roots had gone too deep. And now as we are writing our history of Woodville, we cannot help but wonder if the hand that guided these people to build a church three times, once more had taken over—for the church we loved so well is to be moved to Elkhorn beside the Museum to be preserved as a church and anyone who wishes to worship, regardless of race, color or creed is welcome—a fitting tribute to work well done.

Organists throughout these years were: Mrs. Wm. Wood, Marion Barr, Mr. Hector Oatway, Myrtle Grant (Mrs. J. Scott), Agnes Scott, Fred Livsay, Mrs. Coulson, Mrs. Northcote, Bessie Rowand, Mrs. E. A. Taylor.

Sunday School Teachers were: Mrs. Harvey Johnson, Bert McAdoo, Mrs. Alex Johnson, Mrs. Jas. Grant, Bessie Rowand, Mrs. Dave Barr, Mrs. Wm. Barr, Mrs. E. A. Taylor, Marion Barr, Anne Birchall, Eva Rowand, W. O. Grant, Carrie McAdoo, Myrtle Grant.

Pioneers held their Garden Parties on week days (not Sunday). It was a real celebration and everyone came and had such good visits. All the little girls wore their white dresses and boys wore short pants or knickers. The ladies always supplied good meals or lunches. They spread tablecloths on the ground or table, pooled their food; then children and all, sat down as one big family.

They played ball, or watched Lippentott ball team play and threw horse shoes for entertainment. Also had sack races, wheel barrow races, three-legged, tug of war etc.—everyone taking part. Most spending money children had was what they won racing. But what a lot of treats one got in those days for a nickle or dime! Five "Long Tom" bags of pop corn for a nickle or a big glass of lemonade, peanuts, oranges, candy and ice cream galore. "Those were the days!"

These picnics were sometimes held in the church yard. They were also held on the lawns of Barrs', Wes Lund Sr's., Sam Wrights, Stewart Taylors and Jas. Scotts.

Woodville band sometimes played at these gatherings.

THE STORY OF WOODVILLE

HARVESTING AND THRESHING

Cutting the grain and getting it ready to thresh was a hard job and when the Massey-Harris Co. came out with a binder everyone wanted one—as before they used to make their sheaves by hand, by gathering the loose cut grain, making it into bundles (sheaves) tied by their own stalks. These in turn, had to be stooked. When dried, the sheaves were stacked as in those days there were so few threshing machines, the threshing went on until as late as the following February.

These binders were sold on a get now—pay later basis. The getting was easy but the pay later was hard, due to drought and grasshoppers, by the time they had the bare necessities of life there was nothing left so the company sent out the bailiff to seize whatever he could. On one occasion the bailiff came to Wm. Paull's (Sr) farm to seize his grain or what have you. The threshers were there at the time and when they found out the bailiff was in the house, they took the rope they used to buck the straw and went to the house, they knocked on the door and asked to speak to him. When he stuck his head out of the door they lassoed him and dragged him all over the field. We never heard what happened to the bailiff but he probably did not bother Mr. Paull or his neighbors again. Before the memory of this faded from his mind Mr. Paull wrote a poem about the Massey Harris Co. asking him to pay up or else give security:

Noo Maasey my man doe ye think that I can pay up in a year like this
When the drouths' ta'en my crop and the gopher's didn'a nap,
For they taen what the drout it did miss.
Tak time and reflect hoo cau ye expect
When the het winds lik a green thing did wilt,
Tak the breeks if you can aff a puir Heilandman
When a that he wears is a kilt.

I've a wife an' five weans no yet in their teens
I try for to learn them their Carritch
An' keep them in claes for fear they wad freeze
An' spunes for to sup their drap parritch.

I hae five kye two queys forbye
Three little stots an a bull
Its' oxen I've five for to work an to drive
Ye can secure the hale lot gin you will
But gin you secure them ye'll hae to procure them
Meat, claes, onything they dae want.
An keep them five years I'd pay up a arrears
Tho' I'm left without a reid cent.
I often do think you will drive me to drink
Wi your duns comin' mornin an' nicht
To keep mysel happy I'll flee to the drappie
An keep up my spirits fu' bricht.
But I'm forced to keep sober an frae noo till October
Dinna sent me anither d--d scrawl
If I hae to send you a screed, ye'll hae to send a queen's heid
Sae dinna mair dun Bill Paull.

THE STORY OF WOODVILLE

THRESHING OUTFIT OF GOETHE BROS.

THRESHING IN PIONEER DAYS

Hill and Buckingham came in the real early days with their outfit, and as they were near the first to come, that is how Buckingham came to get its name. They had a crew from 15 to 20 men. Threshing was much different in those days, they used a portable engine, being moved with horses. The first machine had no blower, and the boilers stood upright. They used to buck the straw with horses and put the grain in bags. The big engine was run by steam and each outfit had a water wagon. When they were out of water three sharp toots on the whistle brought the water wagon in a hurry. Sometimes they had many miles to go for water. One long toot meant noon-hour and also back to work.

Wm. Frank Longman purchased his threshing outfit in 1884 and Tom and John Adair theirs in 1895. Wm. Lipsey threshed for many years and he was a big help in developing the district. Tom Dahl and Ben Axelson got an outfit and started harvesting crops in 1903. They threshed many years in and around the district.

By and by a few more pioneers purchased outfits. In 1903 Harvey Johnson and Fred Chapple also did their share of threshing. In 1906 Goethes and Postons started up together but later on the Goethes took over from Postons and they threshed many a year. Guy Longman started with his machine in 1907 and threshed both sides of the creek. In 1908 a Mr. Wm. Sproule from Kirkella, Man., came in with his machine to help with the threshing. He did this for a number of years.

From 1910 to the 20s several outfits came into the district. Among them were Wm. Barr, W. A. Poston, Jim Paull, H. J. Wood and before that there were real early outfits such as Harry Parker, E. A. Parsons and R. Baillie.

THE STORY OF WOODVILLE

In 1894 Wm. Longman passed away and his wife was left with three small sons—so she had to sell their threshing outfit. She made the deal with Allan Struthers who lived north of Elkhorn for the sum of one thousand dollars. He kept the machine and never paid anything on it. The same thing happened to Adair Bros. They sold their outfit to a Mr. Marshall. He did the threshing that fall, collected what bills he could and skipped out—leaving the Adair Bros. without any pay—however they did manage to collect some of the outstanding bills and kept this money as payment on the machine. These were a few of the experiences these people had to content with in the early days.

The men worked hard and long hours. Breakfast was at 5 a.m. and they had to be up and have their horses fed and ready to go to work as soon as breakfast was over. The crews were anywhere from 15 to 20 men. These men slept in bunk-houses which were far from the last word in comfort. Most of them slept on a bed of hay, with a few bedbugs to keep them company at night. Some of these men were lousy so they had company day and night. Some of them did not even take time to wash, but these were good men and took a days work in their stride. Man and his team made about two dollars a day in the early 1900s. When night came their cares rolled away as they played cards, sang, laughed and joked.

Many of these men came from the east and when it rained, sometimes they were laid off for about three weeks. Some got a bottle and went on a spree. Others helped on the farm until it was time to go back to work.

The women's work was hard, they worked under difficulties doing the best they could with what they had, such as coal oil lamps, carrying their water from the well in pails, making their own butter, having no washing machine and fighting flies by the millions. Still they were happy women and most of them enjoyed cooking their best for the men. They loved to see them come and felt lonesome when they left.

After threshing was over farmers would haul their grain to the elevator. Some a distance of 14 to 20 miles. Some used oxen, some mules and some horses. When the weather was cold they had to wear fur coats and walk behind the sleigh to keep warm. When they arrived in Elkhorn this cavalcade of twenty sleighs or more, the elevator agents used to run out and try and coax these men to bring their wheat to them. They used to hold up one, two or three fingers to indicate what each elevator would pay as by now there were four elevators. Most of them would return home late that night with a jag of coal and a few extra goodies they had not been able to buy the rest of the year.

We think this verse very appropriate for the people of this district. It was written by Harry Reynolds, 84 years of age, a brother of Mrs. George McAdoo a great church worker in Woodville.

THE STORY OF WOODVILLE

THE FARMER

Of all the jobs which men engage
One stands out from the rest
The growing of our daily food
Must rank among the best.

The men who undertake this task
Are true sons of the soil.
The work they do is very hard,
And long hours they will toil

From early morn till eventide
The jobs seem never ending
With all the animals to feed
And to their wants attending.

The weather plays a major part
At times its very fickle,
He may need a lot of rain
And only gets a trickle.

The crops too often suffer much
For in a single night
A frost could almost ruin them
A farmer's tragic plight.

Without this group of solid men,
And the sustenance they give
We'd all be in a sorry state,
Quite difficult to live.

WAR VETERANS

Lest we forget. In deep reverence and loving remembrance of our dear veterans Margaret Barr, Lyle Angus, Louis Birchall, Willis Ehrich, Orvin Ehrich, Leonard Ehrich, Albert George, Kenneth Lund, Stanley Faulkner (killed overseas), David Barr, Russell Grant (was wounded, lost his arm), William Barr (was wounded), C. Redmond, William Garrett, Ralph Stanley (killed overseas), W. Massin, Betty Birchall, Ian Munroe (killed overseas), Floyd Boomhower, Jack Boomhower, John Huntley, Ernest A. Taylor. Armenice Symington and Archie Johnson went to the South African War around 1906, they both returned home safely.

LIVESTOCK

Many of the farmers in the district will be remembered for their fine herds of cattle, horses, pigs and sheep.

Adair Bros. imported a pure bred Clydesdale brood mare from Scotland in 1906. They took many prizes at Brandon and surrounding fairs with her and her offsprings.

Guy Longman bought his first purebred Hereford cow from Frank Callicut of Crossfield, Alta., in 1918 and built up a fine herd of pure bred. One bull took first prizes at Brandon and Portage, grand championship at Dauphin and first prize at Yorkton at class B fairs, winning over Robt. Weir (minister of agriculture at Ottawa). In 1924 he lost 16 head with T. B. and 24 head in 1932, which was a big blow.

David Simpson was noted for his lovely pure bred Percherons. Wm. Barr of his Aberdeen Angus cattle. Robt. Angus and son Lyle built up a good herd of white faces.

THE STORY OF WOODVILLE

Wm. Paull had a fine flock of sheep and barbed wire fences were usually hanging with wool. Many an orphan lamb was given to someone.

Mr. Williams also raised sheep and from the wool there were many comforters, quilts, cushions and pillows made in this home.

A farm noted for pigs is that of Hercules Wood. There has been as many as eight hundred or more on the farm at one time. Lots of bacon and ham there.

INTERESTING INCIDENTS

There were many interesting incidents which took place in the district. A story goes about a couple who got their marriage license in Manitoba and were married in Saskatchewan. When they were informed from headquarters that this was illegal, they were married over again, just across the bridge of the Pipestone Creek (McIndoe's bridge) in Manitoba.

Another interesting happening, but a little more on the serious note, was when Thos. Adair was returning home from Elkhorn with a load of coal, just at dusk, after a long trip to market with a load of wheat with a team and wagon. Two men came out of the bluff along the trail, one went to the horses head, stopping them and the other fellow started climbing up onto the wagon. When Tom noticed a revolver in this man's hand, he picked up a lump of coal and hurled it at his head. The man fell to the ground (possibly knocked out). The man holding the horses had a cane, with which he hit one horse, the team started off on a gallop. This man turned to his companion, picked up the revolver and a shot rang out which hastened the team along all the faster. As this happened about a mile from home they were soon safely there. An attempted robbery, no doubt.

A small pox scare struck the community in 1918 when Wm. Paull Jr., was stricken with this disease, he wasn't feeling too well and stayed in for a while, then went out on the land and finished some seeding. The fever came the second time, a rash and lumps came out on his feet. Dr. Goodwin was called and diagnosed this as small pox. The hired man Walter Peterson also contracted the disease. The Doctor quarantined them for seven weeks. The two lived in a ganary during this time. Most everyone in the district was immediately vaccinated and there were no more cases. Wonderful neighbors gathered and came to Wm. Paull's home as a working bee. There were seventeen men with plows and harrows, Guy Longman with his tractor and they soon caught up with field work.

Each season had its work layed out. In early days families would take sacks or anything that would hold berries. They would drive somewhere along the creek and pick bags of cranberries, saskatoons and choke cherries to make preserves, jam and jellies. They did up enough to hold them over until the next berry season. They also made jam of rose hips, and picked Buffalo beans and used them as pickles. They all grew wild on the prairie. When a horse would get cut in wire fences, they used to pick puff balls to put on the wound to stop the bleeding. Almost anything that grew wild was put to some good use.

In early days the farmer had to take horses and scraper and do road building; work on bridges, cut brush or anything he could help with to pay off his taxes. He had to do one days statute labor with man and team for each quarter section of land. Roads were being built and gravelled about 1913 or 14 and by the time cars became common Wallace Municipality roads were second to none. Of course we couldn't drive cars in the winter till quite recently. Cars were usually jacked up for the winter months to keep the weight off the tires.

Telephone lines were built through this district about 1908 to 1910. This was a wonderful advancement and saved many a long trip. No doubt many lives were saved as Doctors could be called in case of sickness.

The old Ford or "Tin Lizzie" was about the first car to be driven in this district. Mr. Wm. Barr was probably the first to drive one. And oh, how those old timers loved to speed at fifteen miles a hour. Reckless drivers, they were in those days!

THE STORY OF WOODVILLE

A bad cyclone struck the district and surrounding community in 1900 on the 12th of August. A homestead shanty was completely demolished, there was not even two boards left nailed together. This shanty blew across into Paull's field, lumber strewn everywhere. Another log building had a corner of the roof lifted and let down again, then the opposite corner lifted and let down in place, the building still intact after the storm. The Archie Taylor home was lifted up and taken away. Mrs. Taylor was knocked unconscious. Fred Simpson was coming down stairs when the house lifted. The Taylor family moved in with David Simpson's until their place was fixed up. The wind picked up stooks and blew them all over. Some places the men and women had to hold the doors shut, dishes were tumbling off shelves. One place a binder and wagon was on the north side of the barn together, the binder went one direction and the wagon another right towards the house, breaking window and wall when it struck. The storm did not last too long but surely had folks worried, while leaving its destructive tricks.

The prairie fires were about the worst hazard the pioneers experienced, as there was no fire fighting equipment those days. Trees were scarce and when a fire got started it had the full sweep of the prairie, not too much land was broken in the early days. One could look out at night and see the sky all lit up red for miles around, and know there was a bad fire far away. People were terrified, fire travelled so fast, especially with a wind and what looked to be so far away often was closer to home than they had judged it to be. Men would gather with their plows to plow fire guards around buildings and homes and to fight it with grain bags, beating the flames. It was not unusual for people to be awakened at night to come help fireguard some neighbors home. Fires have been known to jump the creek more than once. A bad one got started during the 30s when everything was so dry. Trees burned right to the top, leaves and all. It jumped the creek, burned all and they had it under control next night. It came from the north through John Paull's and down to the Taylor farm. No wonder the early settlers had such fear of fires. They sometimes started from live coals or sparks from trains in dry grass, sometimes from lightning, but often from carelessness with matches. Of course there was the fire bug too, who loved to start fires.

Among the entertainment were the shivarees they held. When a couple were married, after a few days a gang of 15 or 20 men would gather at the bride and groom's home one evening to call and welcome the newcomers to the district and congratulate them. They'd take cow bells, wash tubs, crow bars, anything that would make a noise. The crowd was usually invited in for tea and a piece of wedding cake. Then before they would leave the men would present a gift to the bride and groom. Most gifts were real nice useful things, such as a sideboard, or set of silver. The men would try to put in a couple of dollars each and seldom gave a gift under $45.00. One place they visited was John Paull's. They stood around outside ringing cow bells and banging tubs, then soon as they stopped John would strike up his violin, just killing time until Bill Naylin arrived from the store with apple cider and cigars. Then they were invited in. It was after this do that Dr. Goodwin detected small pox, and he called all who attended to Guy Longman's farm to be vaccinated.

In 1918, a bad epidemic of "flu" hit the district and many other districts. In some homes all the family would be sick in bed, with very high temperatures. Neighbors were just wonderful, men and women used to go and do chores and help in the house, without any fear of catching the germ themselves. Many of them did get sick, however, for when it struck it did not miss many homes. There were many deaths as this was a real bad type called Spanish influenza, and there were not the wonder drugs that we have today. The soldiers returning from the first world war were blamed for carrying the germs home with them. Dr. Goodwin, bless his heart, was a very busy man with very little drugs to work with. And many of the pioneer women used to go along with him or be there when he arrived, to assist him in anything they could help with, to comfort and better these sick people. In those days when there was a death, the body was left in the home until burial with someone always sitting with the body.

THE STORY OF WOODVILLE

Many blizzards on the prairies were experienced by the early settlers. High winds and blowing snow sometimes were almost impossible to be out in. No wonder the old timers wore buffalo coats and big fur backed gauntlets. In one bad storm the family had to put a string from house to barn so they wouldn't get lost when they went out to do chores. Another fellow was driving a doctor when they were caught in a blizzard. They had to dig a hole in a straw pile to get shelter until the storm calmed down. Men have been known to have frozen to death out in the cold when a storm was ranging, and stock losses were often heavy. In those days when a blizzard was on and a cutter or sleigh could not be drawn, the Doctor would offer to come on horseback, providing it was an emergency.

In 1918-19 grasshoppers were bad and took heavy toll in crops, especially barley and wheat.

Woodville in the early days did not have a hockey or baseball team by this name but played never-the-less. Lippentoit ball and hockey teams included many good players from this district and other districts.

Memories drift to scenes long past, Time rolls on, but memories last.

A terrible tragedy happened on the late afternoon of May 8, 1912 when Mrs. Wm. Goethe (formerly Laura Coulson) and her small son were returning home from Will Adairs with horse and buggy. Ruth Adair was with them. They attempted to cross the Pipestone for a shortcut, as they had done many times before. But the water had risen considerably, and they were caught in a whirlpool below the Fielding bridge and drowned. The horse somehow broke loose and returned home without the buggy and its passengers. People came from miles, hundreds of them, to help in the search for the bodies. They built a big raft and dragged the creek for several days before the bodies were recovered. Mrs. Jack Smith opened her home to these people during this period.

In 1915 James Paull, eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Paull, was killed in a run-away. He was taking two loads of hogs to market, driving a team on a wagon and leading a team behind. A car pulled out and passed them, frightening the horses. He jumped or was thrown off the wagon and the back wagon ran over him.

Another sad happening was the accidental shooting of Billy Lipsey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lipsey when target practising with a neighbor lad.

James Montgomery, a former Woodville resident, met with a tragic death when his tractor caught fire. He died from burns received in this accident.

Oliver Rowand was leading a Holstein bull to Wes Lund's when the bull suddenly attacked him, and before help could reach him he was trampled and gored. His neighbor Bill Stewart heard his cry for help but was unable to get there in time to save him. Mr. Rowand died late that night from his injuries, leaving behind a young widow and two very small children, Clarence and Ada. Clarence is now deceased, Ada is now living in Virden. This mishap took place in 1895.

As early as 1889 a drought struck Woodville, many meetings were held and people prayed for rain. One meeting was held in Woodville School, as they were returning home that night every one got soaked. Was the prayer answered? Or was it a coincident? Who knows?

THE STORY OF WOODVILLE

THE DIRTY THIRTIES

Very few people who lived through the dirty thirties will ever forget it and to those who did not we hope you will be spared such a fate.

As the dust clouds rolled across the prairies blotting out the sun, till it was nothing but a red ball, it took with it the hopes and dreams of many farmers for a crop that year.

Although Woodville was not as hard hit as some districts they felt the blow and were hard put to make things go.

In one instance Guy Longman and his threshing outfit had breakfast at Edgar McAdoos, dinner at Fred Simpsons, lunch at Bill Garretts and supper at Paul Ehrichs'. Set the machine eight times in one day.

Clarence Rowand had his wheat threshed in July, his barley and oats were cut for feed.

With the dust storms and droughth came the grasshoppers. They came in hoards cleaning off everything in front of them. Grasshopper poison was spread along the road sides and fields to try and stop them.

With droughth came the task of moving livestock to greener pastures. Some people moved their cattle over one hundred miles. Many livestock died as they could not live on a diet of Russian Thistle, which piled up against the fences completely hiding them.

The dust storms were so bad at times it was so dark in the house you could scarcely see the time across the room in the afternoon. At night you had to shake the dust out of the bed before you went to sleep. In some places yet there is just the top of fence posts sticking out of the ground from drifting soil. A grim reminder of the dirty thirties, a few decades ago.

But its an ill wind that blows no good. Relief food and clothing came from all parts of Canada to the droughth stricken areas, no one was too proud to wear a second hand dress or coat as we were all in the same boat. Often inside the garment would be pinned a note with the senders name and address and a few words of comfort and encouragement.

The dirty thirties seemed to bring out the best in people. They were determined not to give up, they took motors out of their cars as they could no longer afford to run them, put a tongue in it and hooked up old dobbin. They called these "Bennett Buggies."

Many of the young people moved out to find work as there was no work or money for them. Many had to stay as they sunk all they had into their farms. So they hung on little knowing that beneath the parched land lay a fortune in oil beyond their wildest dreams.

Now for the last few decades we have enjoyed bountiful harvests, we hope we may have many more of them.

And now the story of Woodville has ended. In it we have tried to preserve the names of all those who have been and are part of our district. Some of the names you will see were not in the district but so much a part of it we felt we must mention them.

We hope our efforts have brought you some measure of enjoyment and happy memories of the past.

Now more than ever we must realize that without these courageous pioneers, life could not be for us what it is today and so with a deep sense of gratitude and pride we have tried to keep alive some of the happenings of yesteryears.

We hope we have left no one out or made statements which are not correct. We wish to thank the following people without whose help we could not have written this book: Mrs. Edith McCorkindale, Mr. H. J. Wood, Bill Paull, John Paull, Fred Lipsey, Carl Dahl, Myrtle Scott, Bill Goethe.
